- 1978 – 1980 Programme Officer (FAO Associate Expert), Mbabane, Swaziland. Under the overall supervision of the UNDP Resident Representative and the direct supervision of the Acting SAA/FAO C.R., a variety of duties were carried out including monitoring and evaluating the FAO programme, project identification and formulation, preparation of reports and sector studies for submission to FAO HQ, and local professional support to visiting consultants. In addition, the Acting SAA/FAO C.R. was assisted in his duties as Director of Research and Planning and Chief Economist in the Ministry of Agriculture and Cooperatives. Working in the UNDP Office, the report on Development Assistance to Swaziland, 1978 was drafted.
- 1980 – 1981 Economist (FAO Associate Expert), Maputo, Mozambique. Integrated in the Planning Division of the State Forestry Enterprise Mademo, inter alia responsible for the elaboration of the 1982 central plan and the training of national staff in general statistical and other duties. Subsequently transferred to the Planning Office of the Forestry Department of the Ministry of Agriculture with responsibility for reorganizing the office, formulating project documents, preparing economic evaluations of projects, and producing a methodology for planning and control of projects in the forestry sector and training.
- 1981 – 1986 Programme Officer/Economist, Maputo, Mozambique. Reporting directly to the FAO Representative for Mozambique and Swaziland inter alia responsible for monitoring and analysing the economic and agricultural development of Mozambique and Swaziland, including the preparation of general economic reports and agricultural sector studies, project identification, formulation, appraisal and evaluation, collaborative work with visiting consultants and missions and other duties related to effective programme management such as the drafting of correspondence of a day-to-day nature, the organization and supervision of other staff in the FAO Office, including Associate Programme Officers and Junior Professional Trainees.

In addition, deputizing for the FAO Representative on a continuing basis and serving as Acting

FAO Representative during his absence including several 2-3 months periods (totalling well over a year) were part of duties carried out. This meant that high level negotiations with Government officials were performed and that close relationships with UNDP and other UN and non-UN bodies in the two countries of assignment, including members of the diplomatic corps and bilateral aid-missions, were maintained.

1986 – 1987 Project Coordinator/Planning Economist, FAO/Ministry of Agriculture, Maputo, Mozambique. Project TCP/MOZ/4506 - Support to Project Identification, Analysis and Formulation. Reporting directly to the National Director of the Directorate of Agricultural Economics, the following duties were carried out: coordination and programming of all activities of the FAO project, support to the organization and implementation of the work of the Directorate in the fields of project identification, formulation, appraisal and evaluation, assessment of longer term needs for technical cooperation in the field of agricultural project planning and training of national counterparts.

1987 – 1988 Macroeconomist/Agricultural Planner (Teamleader), FAO/Ministry of Agriculture, Maputo, Mozambique. UNDP/FAO project MOZ/86/007 - Support to Agricultural Planning and Policy Analysis. Reporting directly to the National Director of the Directorate of Agricultural Economics duties inter alia included assisting the Directorate in the establishment and operation of a Macroeconomic and Policy Analysis Unit and advising the Director on the following matters: agricultural sector analysis, formulation and periodic review of agricultural sector strategies, agricultural and rural development programmes, agricultural policy analysis and the impact on agriculture of macroeconomic policy.

Other duties included responsibility for supervising and participating in the preparation of a series of economic studies, screening candidates for study fellowships and arranging their training, preparing terms of reference for project consultants, in-service training of project counterpart staff, supervising the work of international project staff and carrying out the administrative duties related to the condition of international Team Leader.

1988 – 1991 Assistant Professor in Development Economics, Institute of Economics, University of Copenhagen, Denmark. Duties included teaching at undergraduate and graduate level, thesis advice to graduate students, and own research as well as curriculum development in the area of development economics.

1991 – 2002 Associate Professor in Development Economics, Institute of Economics, University of Copenhagen, Denmark. Duties included teaching at undergraduate and graduate level, thesis advice at graduate and doctoral level, and own research as well as curriculum development. The establishment and coordination of the development economics unit of the Institute and a joint programme of research with the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI) can also be referred to. Organised a series of ph.d. courses (1997-2001) for Ph.d. students enrolled at Nordic universities.

From 1991-94 secretary of the Board of the Institute of Economics with a range of administrative and supervisory duties. From 1993-2000 Head of the Computer (i.e., Information Technology) Committee, and from 1994 a member of the International Committee of the Institute. Also member of the board of the University of Copenhagen Centre for African Studies (CAS) and Head of CAS during a six-months interim period in 1992. Have finally taught a number of courses at CAS.

1996 – present Coordinator of the Danish collaborative research initiative named Development Economics Research Group (DERG). DERG involves both permanent and temporary staff and ph.d. students at the Institute of Economics at the University of Copenhagen and elsewhere. Visit the DERG homepage at the following internet address for further information: www.econ.ku.dk/derg/

2000 – 2002 Visiting Professor, National Economics University (NEU), Hanoi, Vietnam and Senior Economist/Project Coordinator at the Central Institute of Economic Management (CIEM) under a Danida funded support project implemented by the Nordic Institute of Asian Studies (NIAS) entitled “Strengthening the development research and policy analysis capacity at CIEM”. Duties included teaching at NEU, capacity building, research and advisory activities related to studies and reports prepared at CIEM as well as project management.

2002 – present Professor of Development Economics, Department of Economics, University of Copenhagen. Duties have included regular teaching and departmental tasks in addition to research and research supervision as well as the organization of international ph.d. courses and seminars, international collaboration and conferences, teaching and advisory work for Danida and coordination of the Development Economics Research Group (DERG). International collaboration includes large scale field level activities in Vietnam and Mozambique funded from a variety of bilateral and multilateral sources. Duties involve frequent travel to these two and other developing countries. In Vietnam and Mozambique close collaboration exists with various central research and planning offices. Frequent seminars and conferences are held in these two locations. I have also been a member of the International and the Research Committees at the Department of Economics and supervisor of a large number of Ph.d. and M.Sc. students. Activities at the University of Copenhagen are presently more limited due to my assignment as Director of UNU-WIDER.

2009 – present Director, UNU-WIDER, Helsinki, Finland. The World Institute for Development Economics Research (WIDER) is the first research and training centre of the United Nations University (UNU), established in Helsinki, Finland in 1984. UNU-WIDER undertakes applied research and policy analysis on global development and poverty issues. As Director I hold overall responsibility for the research and management of the Institute, including the design and implementation of the research programme within the policies and guidelines set out by the WIDER Board and the UNU Council. Researchers include both resident research staff and a global research network including a series of external project directors. For full details see <http://www.wider.unu.edu/>
