Information Note for Participants

1. General

Domestic revenue mobilization allows governments to finance critical public goods necessary to meet the goals of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. However, developing countries continue facing significant challenges in mobilizing domestic resources. UNU-WIDER’s Domestic Revenue Mobilization (DRM) programme, funded by Norad, addresses the challenges of domestic revenue mobilization through seven thematic and inter-connected projects around three themes: development of tax systems, non-tax domestic revenue mobilization, and political institutions.

The 2023 WIDER Development Conference brings together experts from research and policy networks from around the world to discuss and debate the findings and policy recommendations of UNU-WIDER’s Domestic Revenue Mobilization (DRM) research programme. The conference will support policy processes in partner countries by sharing new knowledge on how domestic revenue mobilization can be enhanced and how it can combat poverty.
